Mayor of Snæfellsbær

Welcome to the EFSA Boat Championship 2018 in Ólafsvík, Iceland.

Ólafsvík is part of the municipality of Snæfellsbær, a community which circles the Snæfellsjökull Glacier, made famous by Jules Verne in his Journey to the Center of the Earth.

Snæfellsbær was established with the merging of four municipalities in 1994 and has continued to evolve since with flourishing fisheries, farming and tourism industries.

The fishing industry has been a major part of the economy in the Snæfellsnes peninsula, since the settlement of Iceland. In the past, smaller fishing stations were scattered along the coastline, however, today, Snæfellsbær has three lively harbours, in Rif, Arnarstapi and Ólafsvík, as well as several successful fishing enterprises and processing plants within the community.

Ólafsvík is the largest fishing town of the Snæfellsnes peninsula, and our harbours are close to excellent fishing grounds. While in winter we see mainly bigger boats in our harbours, in the summer we have a fun and busy community of fishermen and boats of all sizes enriching our towns and harbours.

Sea angling has been a popular sport in Ólafsvík for a long time. The town is perfect for it, it is close to really good fishing grounds and the town has available several services and shops where repairs, spare parts and fishing equipment can be procured.

Apart from Sea Angling and fishing, Snæfellsbær is known for the Snæfellsjökull Glacier and the beautiful nature surrounding it. The Snæfellsjökull National Park was established in June 2001 and within it you will find beautiful landscape, lava fields, relics of old farms and fishing stations, great hiking trails and a haven for birdwatchers. Since we are so close to the fishing grounds, our shores are often lined with seals and you can see whales playing off the shore while you watch the amazing sunset over the Breiðafjörður Fjord.

There are several caves within our municipality, and one, Vatnshellir, allows visitors to go on guided tours underneath the lava field, experiencing an 8000 year old lava tube.

Snæfellsbær has long been involved in environmental protection, being the first municipality in Iceland to start work on Local Agenda 21 in 1998. Today, Snæfellsbær is part of the EarthCheck certification process along with the other municipalities in the Snæfellsnes peninsula. We received full certification in 2008 and in 2014 the area was rated as one of the 100 greenest destinations in the world by Green Destination.

We hope you'll enjoy your stay with us and urge you to make use of the facilities available to you during your stay. We hope we will all enjoy great fishing.

Kristinn Jónasson,

Mayor of Snæfellsbær

President of EFSA

Dear EFSA family.

Our love of angling has taken us to many wonderful places, unites us in our existing friendships and introduces us to so many more NEW friends who share our passion for the sea and our sport.

And now we find ourselves once again in one of the most stunning countries of all, Iceland.

We are here on the beautiful Snæfellsnes Peninsula which just out into the fish rich seas of Faxaflói Bay to the south and Breiðafjörður to the North. These names remind us of Iceland's Nordic past when the great Viking explorers such as Flóki Vilgerðarson discovered and named the places in 871 AD where we now stand and where we will fish together in the coming days.

This Peninsula is described as 'Iceland in miniature' because so many National and natural sights can be found here such as the 1446 metre high Snæfellsjökull Volcano, one of Iceland's symbols made famous by the French author Jules Verne in his novel 'Journey to the Centre of the Earth'.

This little town of Ólafsvík faces north into the large shallow bay of Breiðafjörður which is known for the strength of its tides and windy conditions as well as the richness of its fishing.

This will be a challenging Championship for us as anglers and will test our angling skills and seamanship as well as our endurance in our quest for the big cod and any of the other 15 species that I am assured by local fishermen could be caught during this EFSA event.

We last fished here together just four years ago in 2014. We have experienced the friendship and hospitality of the Icelandic people and our friends in Ólafsvík and we are delighted to return to such a wonderful place and renew and strengthen our friendships within our EFSA family.

Yes, we are here for the fishing and may our competition be blessed with fine catches, fair weather, kind seas and good results but most of all we are here to celebrate the special bonds of friendship that bind us all and make us what we are and which our love of angling makes possible.

Good Luck to all and let the Spirit of EFSA flow through you during your time at sea over the next few days in this most inspirational and testing of marine settings.

Your Illustrious Chairman

Horst Schneider

Chairman EFSA Iceland

Dear fellow anglers and friends.

For the second time EFSA Iceland welcome you to Olafsvik to fish in a European Championship. The first time it was the European Species Championship in 2014 when we for two days fished only for Cod but now in 2018 it is the European Boat Championship. Last year or in late May 2017 EFSA Iceland held in preparation for this big event a three days competition with 46 anglers from 6 Section on 11 boats. The competition was planned as three days of fishing with the first two days to be fished by the EFSA HQ rules i.e. all species. On the third day the target was big Cod and Coalfish with unlimited numbers in these species and fish over 90 cm. gave the most points. We could only go out two of the days as the first day was cancelled due to bad weather. But in spite of only two days of fishing we caught 2100 fish that counted, 9 species and a lot of big Cod and Coalfish and the longest one was a Cod of 122 cm. So there is lot of fish out there!

In this European Boat Championship we will fish on small boats with 3 to 5 anglers onboard of each of them and the skippers are all local professional fishermen that know the fishing ground we are going to try our luck. In most of the fishing areas out of Olafsvík the bottom is fairly good but there can be rough bottom in some fishing grounds. The weather in Iceland in May can be windy and cold so remember to bring with you some warm cloths and boots.

I am sure that you will enjoy your stay in Iceland and in Olafsvik and I and all our members look very much forward to see you.

Practical information

Olafsvik is a fishing village with 945 inhabitants situated in West Iceland 235 km from Keflavik (Reykjavik airport) or 194 km from Reykjavik.

2 man and 4 man teams: 2 man team: Price 500 ISK pr. angler. 4 man team: Price 500 ISK pr. angler. Total 1.000 ISK for an angler if you register into 2 man and 4 man team. Pay at registration.

Tackle shop: In Olafsvik is no tackling shop. EFSA Iceland will be selling lead.

The fishing: All fish have to be killed by bleeding (if they are not undersized) and brought onshore. The skipper or his assistant will bleed the fish. We will provide you with a bucket onboard for your fish. When the skipper has written your fish down on the score sheet the fish is put into the common box. If you got more than 10 fish (in a specie) those fish are put directly into the common box.

Please note: Don't release a fish if you have more than 10 in a specie. Put it into the common box. Your longest fish always counts even if you have more than 10.

Fish to catch: Cod, Coalfish, Haddock, Redfish, Dab, Catfish (Wolf fish) and Whiting. We expect to fish few Ling, Shorthorn Sculpin (Scorpion fish), Tusk (Brosme) and Grey Gurnard. We hope to catch some Rough Dab, Flounder, Halibut and Plaice and maybe some Starry Ray and Pollock (very rare). There is no Wrasse, Conger, Garfish, Pouting, Spotted Dogfish, Scad, Brill or Smoot hound.

Note: No points for baitfish Mackerel, Herring, Blue Eye, Squid etc.

The boats: Small boats 3 to 5 anglers on a boat and professional skippers on each boat. Most of the skippers speak English.

Practicing boats: We can't promise you to provide practicing boats to rent prior to the championship but we will assist you finding boats.

EFSA uniform: You have to wear EFSA uniform at the Welcome reception, the Prize giving Ceremony and the Gala dinner.

The weather: It can be cold and windy in May in Iceland. Bring with you warm cloths and boots.

International tel. area code for Iceland is +354.

For all emergency situations call 112.

Point system, boats, fishing gear, fishing technique

The Point system and the Score card.

The points given in the Boat Championship are from 2 to 10 points for each five fish caught in each species. In addition, one point will be given for next five in each species. A maximum of 10 fish in each species count for points. A percentage rule will be used in the Championship.

Boats.

The boats in the Championship will be mainly small size plastic fishing boats. Experienced skippers on each boat know where to catch the fish. The skipper can net the fish for the anglers if requested and they will gill all fish for the anglers. They can be of help in all troubles for example tangled lines or breaking the line for anglers but they may never bait the hooks for anglers or touching the rod when the trace is down.

The boats will be drifting when fishing all days.

Fishing. Gear and technique.

In the EFSA Boat Championship we will be fishing similar as in other EFSA Championships and light gear can be used with traditional rods and reels. Use small hooks for haddock and catfish (2/0-5/0) Bait will be supplied by the organizers and no other bait is allowed other than caught by the angler that day. Fishing will mainly be on baited traces, paternoster or similar, of course Pirks and artificial lures can also be used. Indeed pirking can sometimes be very good for an experienced angler.

Please just keep in mind, have the fish netted when brought to the surface or try lifting the fish by getting hold of the line and bring it in carefully that way. Please do not lift the fish on board with the rod. If the fish falls off in the process the trace or pirks can cause severe personal damage.

Examples of common traces

Lead can be bought from EFSA Iceland at the Championship but notice there is no tackle shop in Olafsvik. The weather condition in May can be cold and windy with heavy sea so it is necessary to bring warm cloths, gloves and rubber boots. Especially we recommend waterproof pants and jackets or anoraks.

Old Olafsvik, a short history

Olafsvik has a history of 330 years when in 1687 the area where Olafsvik stands now was granted a permit from the Danish king to become a trading center for north-western part of the Snæfellsnes peninsula.

Olafsvik 1836. Auguste Mayer.

Olafsvik was a thriving fishing village at the start of the 20th Century and was the 6th largest town in Iceland with 612 inhabitants and 127 homes. In 1911 Olafsvik became a municipality by law.

In the 19th Century and the first two decades of the 20th Century the fishermen from the village sailed or rowed on small open boats to the rich fishing grounds short distance from the shore to get Cod and Haddock using baited hooks attached to lines that was draw up with hands. Once the catch was onshore it was divided equally accordant to the number of the crew if all onboard were able men but not young boys (they got half share). The owner of the boat got one share and each crewmember also one share. If the owner of the boat or the merchant in the village provided the crew with hooks and fishing tools he also got a share of the catch. The fishermen sold their catch to the local merchant that payed with goods for their homes or they traded the fish with the local farmers for lamb meat and milk.

Fisherman. 19th Century.

Rowing boat. 19th Century early 20th Century.

The first boat with an engine came to Olafsvik in 1904 but it was not before than in the third decade that a small wooden pier was built. It was only after WWII that a harbor was built in Olafsvik and thus abled bigger fishing vessel and small cargo ships to land the fish and cargo onshore directly on the pier into the fishing factories and warehouses.
